Pittston.

The Niagara steam fire engine was given another test at the water's edge on the West Side yesterday morning. The test was made under the supervision of Wilbur Shipp, a practical machinist and engineer employed in the Lehigh Valley roundhouse at Coxton.

The test was a most thorough one and showed beyond a doubt that the engine is one more in first class condition, as may be seen from the following copy taken from the report of Mr. Shipp after the test had been completed. It is as follows: "M. N. Donnelly, chairman of the committee in accordance with instructions received from Charles McCanna, of the Niagara Engine company, and George J. Liwellyn, chief engineer of the fire department, I made the test this morning of the Niagara fire engine with the following results: The engine was started at 10:30 a. m. Ten minutes later a section of hose burst under a steam pressure of seventy-five pounds and 160 pounds water pressure. Another section of hose burst five minutes later under a steam pressure of ninety pounds and 185 water pressure. After a run of one half hour the engine stopped. Upon investigation I found no oil in the cylinders. On filling the oil cups and putting oil in the cylinder, which occupied about two minutes' time, the engine was again started and this time ran until all the fuel was exhausted, about fifteen minutes. If the engine is run properly it is, in my opinion, in first class serviceable condition, as the water pressure more than doubled the steam pressure, as it showed at sixty pounds steam pressure 160 pounds water pressure, and at ninety pounds steam pressure showed 185 pounds water pressure. (Signed) Wilbur Shipp." The fact of the engine stopping and the discovery of Examiner Shipp that there was no oil in the journals was due to the failure of Engineer McCanna, who was in charge of the operating of the engine, to properly oil the parts. The report of Examiner Shipp will be presented to Mr. Donnelly and the council at the first regular meeting.

The town council met in special session in the town hall last evening to make the necessary arrangements for sending a committee to the various cities to inquire into the merits of the different "paves." Chairman Mangan presided, and appointed the following committee: Lynott, Clifford, Knowles, Resp. Kennedy, Maloney, Mangan and Burgess Maloney. The committee expect to leave this morning at 7:30 o'clock and will return next week.

The question of widening the main street at a point where the old Carbondale road connects with it near the foot of Mill street was taken up and discussed. It was finally decided to have the borough engineer make an estimate of the cost of vacating the said road (Carbondale) and the building of a retaining wall. The council therefore adjourned.

The directors of the Water street bridge held a meeting in the directors' bank yesterday afternoon for the purpose of discussing the advisability of erecting a new steel bridge in place of the present structure, which is fast going to decay. After considerable talk it was resolved that the repair committee, J. B. Sullivan, George Smith, John Howell and James Mosier, invite plans and bids for the building of a new steel bridge similar to the one recently erected at Wilkes-Barre.

A prominent Lehigh Valley official, while in town yesterday, when asked if the company would refuse to take between Wilkes-Barre and Pittston, to compete with the Traction company, said the company shall not make any effort to compete with the electric line.

It is said that the Traction company will shortly begin to lay a Y track from Main to William street for cars from Wilkes-Barre and the Junction to lay over on the last named street.

At the instance of the Pittston Ferry Bridge company Alex Farnham, of Wilkes-Barre, Tuesday afternoon took preliminary action in applying to court for an injunction to restrain the company and the Pittston Street Car company from lowering the grade of Main street, at the approach to the bridge. The borough engineer and Mr. Board, superintendent of construction for the Street Car company, claim the street grade has not been changed. The injunction was served yesterday afternoon, but as the grade was not changed nothing was done in the matter.

A horse and mule owned by E. L. Fuller & Co., of Dursey, escaped from the barn yesterday morning and galloped along the Valley cut-off track, toward Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre junction. The Valley's New York flyer was coming from Avoca at a lively speed, and the shrill whistle of the engine caused the animals to run even faster. They continued their flight on the long bridge over the Delaware, Lehigh and Western tracks, and the engineer of the passenger train slowed up and watched the result. The animals got over about forty feet of the bridge, when their legs dropped between the ties and they were pinned fast. The passenger train was brought to a standstill at the approach to the bridge. A temporary scaffold was built, ropes secured and fastened about the animals, and they were drawn out of their plight with little difficulty. They escaped with a few slight injuries. The passenger train was delayed twenty minutes.

A man who requested the Lehigh Valley company to remove its tracks on North Main street is being seriously agitated by several members of the citizens' advisory committee and the probabilities are that at a future meeting of the council the matter will be brought before that body for action.
